THE SUGAR CALL.

Now flickers call, and robins call,
And bluebirds in the wood.
"Oh, hurry, hurry, hurry!"
Here's sugar that is good.
Oh, hurry, hurry, hurry!
Bring buckets, spoons, and spoon.
The maple sap is running free
In March's sunny noon.
Hepaticas are peeping through
The dead leaves in the wood.
Oh, hurry, hurry, hurry!
Sugaring time is good.
Oh, hurry, hurry, hurry!
The snow is melting fast.
The time to gather sugar
We'll soon be quickly past."

HENRI MATISSE 1869-1954

MATISSE was one of the most brilliant artists of our century. He changed the way we look at color, form and line. He made thousands of drawings and had a remarkable talent for reducing an image to its simplest, loveliest components. Along with PICASSO and GAUGUIN, MATISSE was one of the pioneers of modern sculpture.

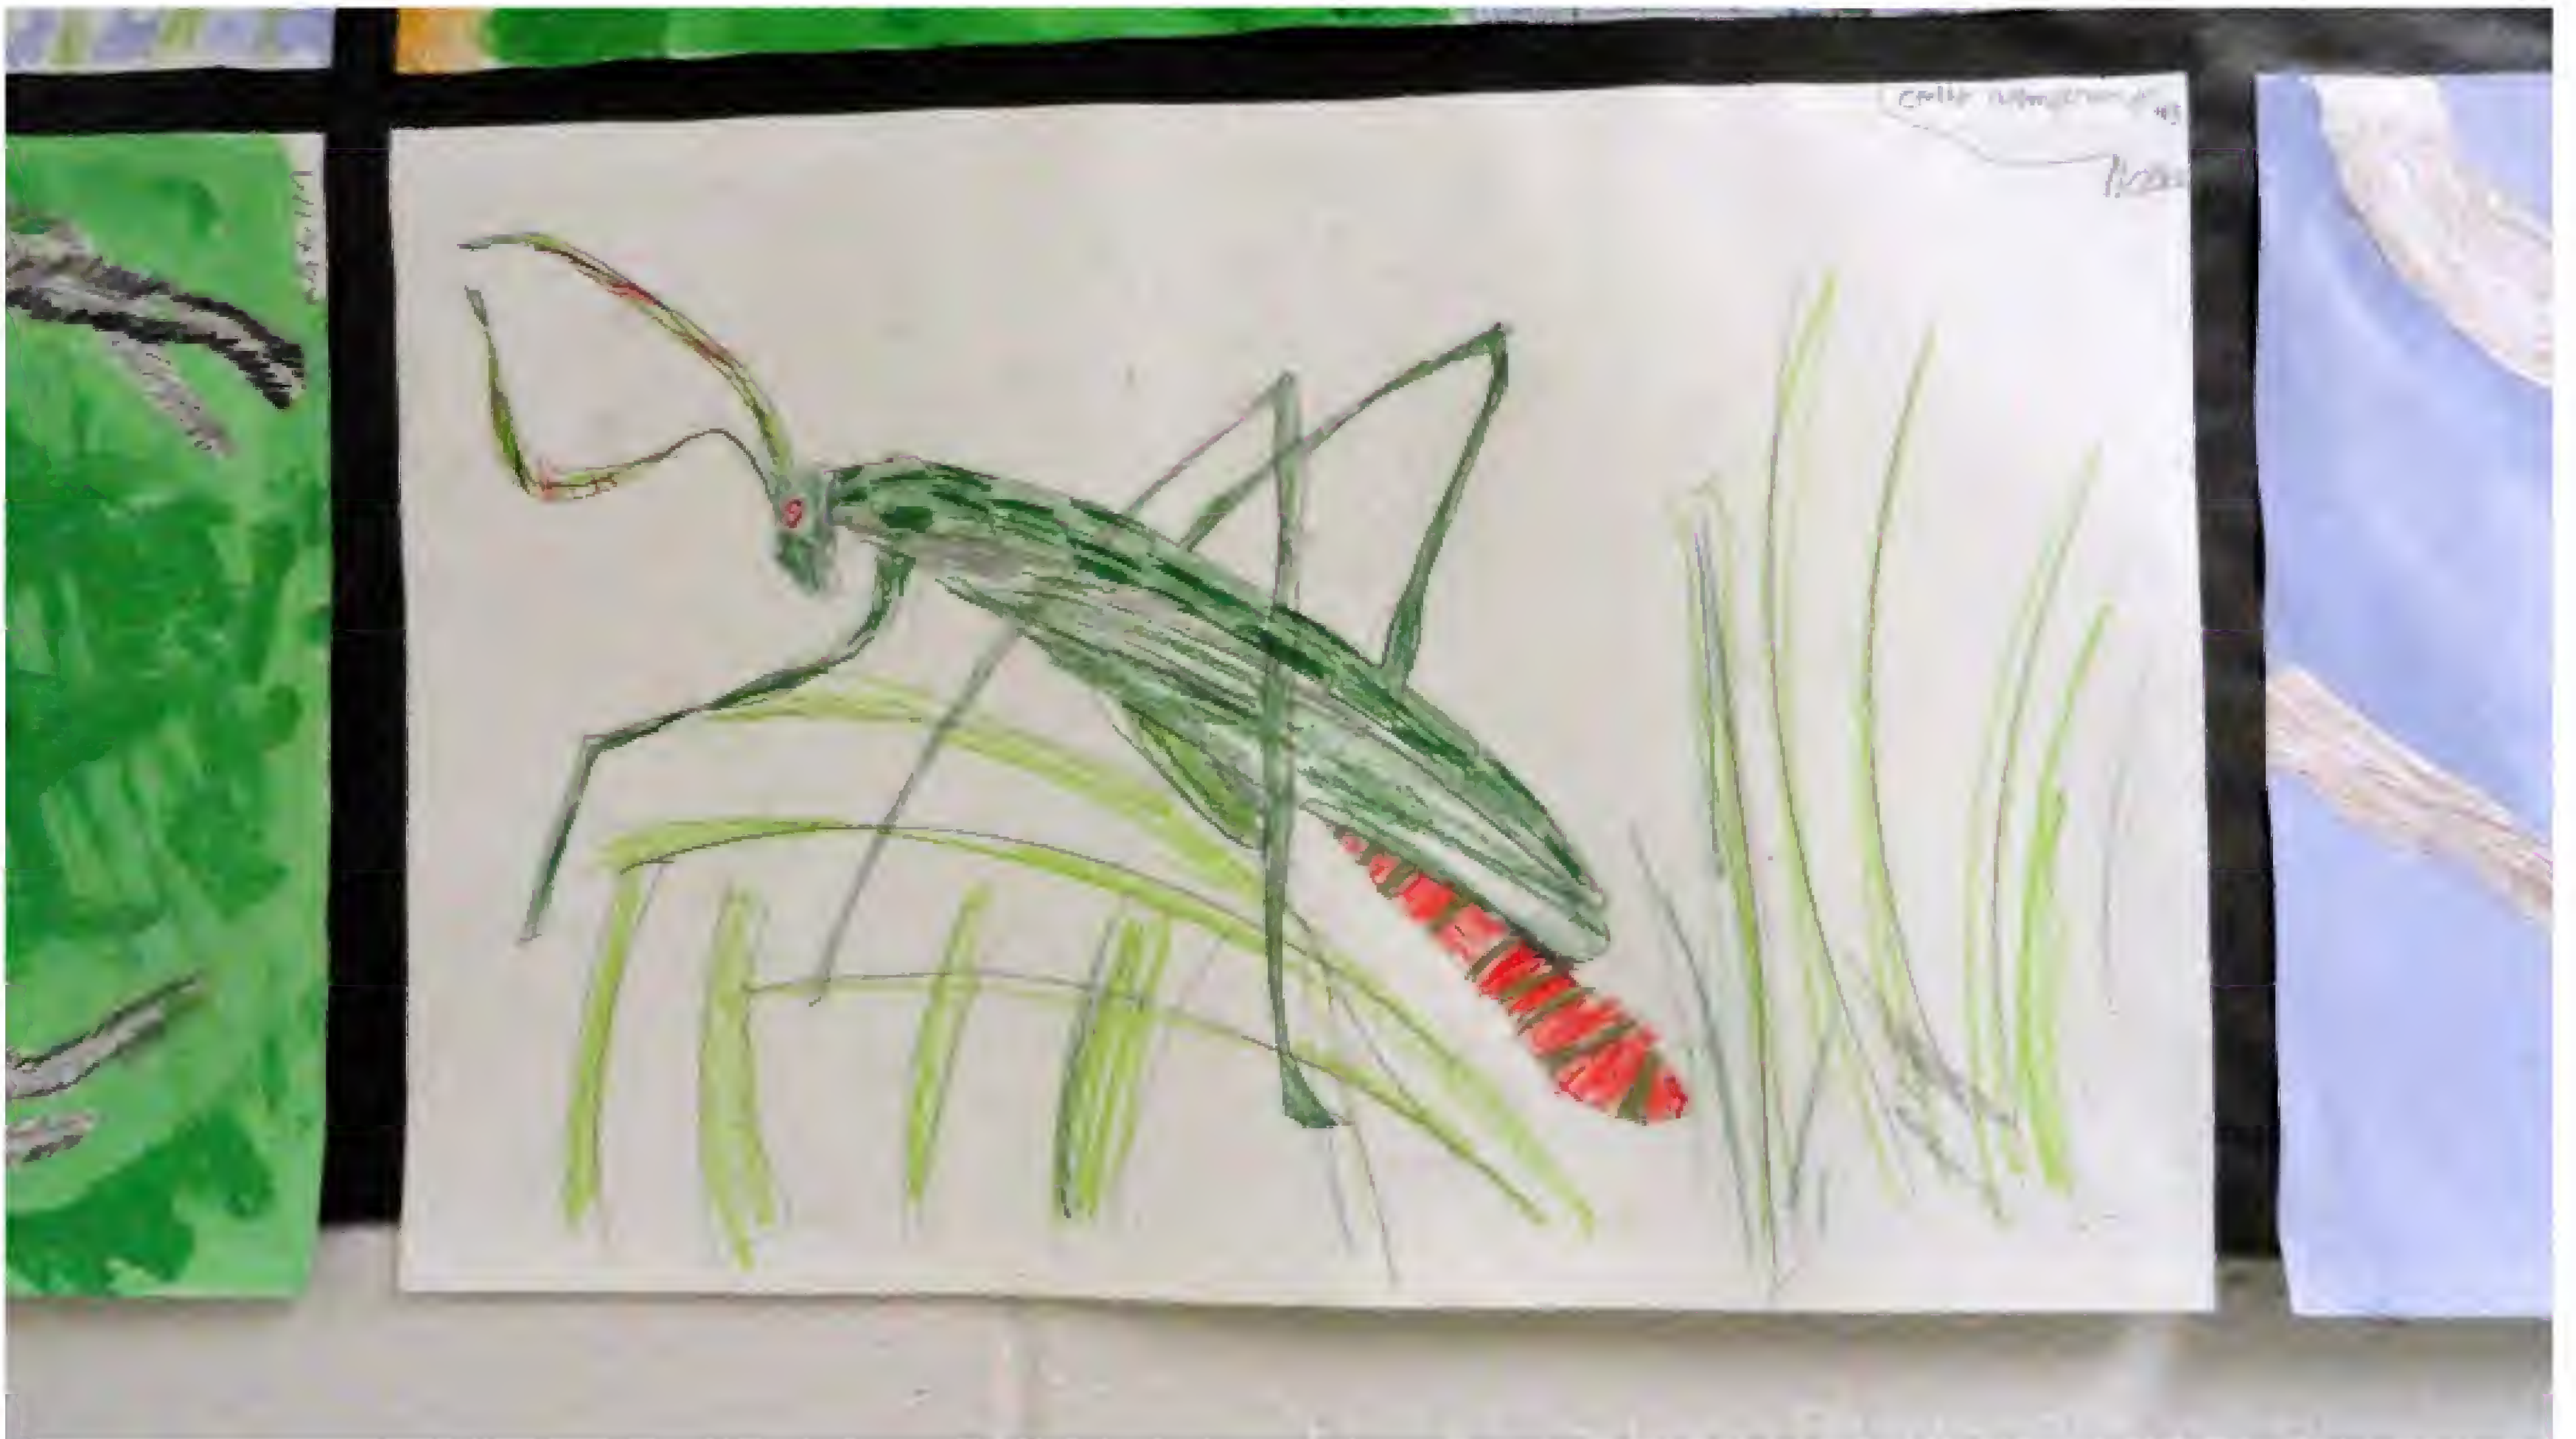

In his lifetime he was never popular with critics or the public but was loved by the next generation of painters.

When his eyesight started to fail he cut shapes from colored paper, creating a huge body of work. MATISSE'S view of art was that it should make life more positive and joyful. "Colors have a beauty of their own," he said, which must be preserved as one strives to preserve the finest quality in nature."

How to Catch a Leprechaun

On St. Patrick's Day go outside of the rain and look for a leprechaun. Then go back and get a rope and a trap. Then go to the end of the rainbow and set the trap. Put the rope in the trap so he can not run away. Then hide in the forest to make sure you can see him.
Watch him because he is magic and he might plan a trick. Catch him when he comes back to the gold. When you get him, take him back to a secret camp.
